Alter Bridge, Breathe Again

I have played the part I have all but lost my soul And I have sacrificed For what it's worth I just don't know In the silence of my heart There is a distant call That beckons me to stand apart So I 'set out on my own Just to breathe again Touch the light that calls me home Just to reach the end Where I'm free to breathe again Through the suffering Through the misery and pain Never anything But the will to see the day When the promise might be born Like a spark within 'Cause İ can't take it anymore So I set out on my own Just to breathe again Touch the light that calls me home Just to reach the end Where I'm free to breathe again Well I am free to roam And set out on my own To rise above the hands that try to hold me down Before the end I know I'll breathe again To find my way So I set out on my own Just to breathe again Touch the light that calls me home Just to reach the end I'm leaving today I'm leaving today I'm leaving today