Aly & A.J., Sticks And Stones

Sitting in my room, feeling sorry for myself I can't feel worse, well what else? I wonder what I could say To stop the voices taunting, laughing The way they're acting, I wish they'd just disappear The joke is always on me, it's always on me Why don't they understand that we are all the same? And we all feel lost at times? Why don't they understand That someone else's pain is not for gain? Sticks and stones won't break my soul, get out of the way I'm invincible, throw them down 'cuz the one you hurt is not around Not around, it's not your place, honestly In the end you'll be the victim You're the one who has to live with yourself And when you're reachin' for help They'll be no one, there's no one Why don't they understand that we are all the same And we all feel lost at times? Why don't they understand That someone else's pain is not for gain? Sticks and stones won't break my soul, get out of the way I'm invincible, throw them down 'cuz the one you hurt is not around Not around, it's not your place, honestly I won't live in chains, I've got somethin' to give I won't play these games, yeah I'd rather live You know I've come too far to be like you are Why don't they understand that we are all the same Sticks and stones won't break my soul Get out of the way, I'm invincible, throw them down La la, la la, la la, la la, la la, la la, la la la Throw them down 'cuz the one you hurt is not around Not around, not around anymore It's not your place, honestly
