You Will Love This Song

You always loved the colors and the details, so here's mine:

I snuck out down a dark 17th Street late last night.

I took my little orange book lamp and the notebook with the stars on the front, the sleeping bag that

And my eyes turned green, like they do when I'm crying, and my heart it went to blue 'cause you to

Yeah, I like you a lot.. and I think it's worse than that.

You said you love it when all the words in a song move really fast and your ears have to choose jus

And you love it when all the chords are really simple so you can play it on the guitar, and then when

And so I'll build you a song, and I know you're gonna love it 'cause I'm putting in all the pieces that

Yeah hot, like that day that you called sick for work because we'd stayed out too late at The Chees

And you said "I like you a lot" and I thought 'well, this couldn't get much better.'

You said you were so happy you met me when you did 'cause you were starting to think you didn't

And you told me that when I moved that I could still stay in your room for weeks.

But now I'm wondering if I imagined it or if it was ever really there 'cause they say even in magic no

So now I'm the fool up on stage at the magic show searching the deck for my card while everyone

Yeah 'cause I like you a lot.. but I don't know what to do with it now.

And I like you a lot.. but I didn't think it'd hurt this bad.

And I like you a lot.. and we both know that it's worse than that.
