

Amberian Dawn, The Court Of Mirror Hall

Welcome

Please, do enter to my court

Look at all these paintings

All these crystals

Could you stay all your life?

Moving slowly to the golden door

A peaceful voice she heard

"Welcome to my court, my friend";

Dancing shallow puppets

Wedding bells

She heard that voice again

"Let me introduce myself";

The court is having a ball

In dominos I welcome you all

The mirrors on the wall

Show me who to adore

The wedding is on

The court is having a ball

In mirror hall

I welcome you all

The paintings on the wall

Show you who to adore

The wedding is on

Look at him

He's been here long before

A noble "pardon me,

I'm the count of moan and grief";

To rule with him? He's sad and lonely man

I'll give you all you yearn

I will prove our love will burn

The court is having a ball

In dominos I welcome you all

The mirrors on the wall

Show me who to adore

The wedding is on

The court is having a ball

In mirror hall

I welcome you all

The paintings on the wall

Show you who to adore

The wedding is on

Step into the light

On a thousand chandeliers

Walk down the aisle

Give our vows and

I'm the countess now and forever

The court is having a ball

In dominos I welcome you all

The mirrors on the wall

Show me who to adore

The wedding is on

The court is having a ball

In mirror hall

I welcome you all

The paintings on the wall
Show you who to adore
The wedding is on