

Amy McDonald, A wish for something more

Oh the sun is shining far too bright For it to still be night
Oh the air feels so cold so cold and old How can it be light Oh lets take a walk outside
See the world through each others eyes I wish I was your only one I think youre beautiful but your hair is a mess and your shoes are untied, but that's what I love best.
And I, I wish I was the one you lonely lonely son and you looked at me that way.
I wish for long lingering glances, fairytale romances
every single day
And you look at me and say Im your best friend every day but I wish for something wish for something more Oh I love you like a friend but lets not pretend how I wish for something, wish for something more.
Oh the grass is so green but I cant see anything, past your eyes I'm fixated on your smile your cherry lips make life worthwhile I'm thinking these things what Im trying to say Life gets in my way
every single day.
Chorus
Now the sun is fading and the rain is coming down
And Im looking at your face but youre looking at the ground
I see diamonds in your dreams I see pearls around your neck
I see everything that's beautiful, everything that's beautiful.
Chorus
