

Amy Ray, Blame Is A Killer

There was something you gave I'm sitting with as the seasons change
It lays unclaimed sometimes Blame is a killer I see the river that was and say what have I done to see the forest for the trees Truth is a villain Did it steal you away from me or did it give me humanity?
Did it show me an autumn moon
when I needed my eyes of youth?
There's a big big love I need to be part of I watch the leaves die while I wait
Time is unyielding
I see the days turn grey but for all our praying we can't end this drought with rain
The gods are unwilling Did they steal love away from me or did they give me humanity?
Did they show me an autumn moon
when I needed my eyes of youth?
Yeah you gotta roll brand new and you gotta sing in tune Yeah you got hands to hold
So many blooms to unfold
