

Ana Johnston, 6 Feet Under

You just left me, six feet under ground
I'm burning, at the sight of the light
I'm down here, six feet under buried alive
With one open eye
Every time you come around, you leave me broken
What have I done wrong?
You're tearing me apart now, without a word spoken
You've gone far too long
Now why you, stroke me down?
You gave me no sign
Now why you, let me drown?
Now why?
You just left me, six feet under ground
I'm burning, at the sight of the light
I'm down here, six feet under buried alive
With one open eye
Every time you come around, you leave me burning
Got nothing, but scars
You're tearing me apart now, but I'm not learning
Still who you are
Now why you, stroke me down?
You gave me no sign
Now why you, let me drown?
Now why?
You just left me, six feet under ground
I'm burning, at the sight of the light
I'm down here, six feet under buried alive
With one open eye
You just left me, six feet under ground
I'm burning, at the sight of the light
I'm down here, six feet under buried alive
Yes, I'm buried life
Ooh - ooh - ooh...
You just left me, six feet under ground
I'm burning, at the sight of the light
I'm down here, six feet under buried alive
Yeah, I'm buried life - with one open eye