

Anderson Jon, Everybody Loves You

Anderson Jon
Song Of Seven
Everybody Loves You
Suddenly the feeling came
I wanted just to be with you
And if you answer yes the same
You'll give me more
Than all reasons will

Everybody loves you
But I just love you a little bit more
I just love you a little bit more
You know, everybody loves you

Suddenly the horizon lifts
There's a sign up high, signed liberty
I thought I'd write a love poem for you
Your beauty's right, your music's right

Everybody loves you
But I just love you a little bit more
You know, I just love you a little bit more
Yes, everybody loves you

God, you know he wears a blue t-shirt, too
With God inscribed in heaven on both sides
And if I thought about your love light
It shines through you
Yes, it shines through you

Everybody loves you
But I just love you a little bit more
You know, I just love you a little bit more
Everybody loves you

Suddenly the moment's there
To hold you close
Babe, you're the most
I could take you any time
We so in love
We so in love

Everybody loves you
But I just love you a little bit more
I just love you a little bit more
A little bit
A little bit
More
Everybody loves you
