

Andrew Paul Woodworth, Everything to everyone

I'm uncomfortable getting massages.

I don't like to be stuck in a crowd.

But I would like to ride bicycles through your marathon.

I don't want to be alone at a party.

I don't want to be the knock on a door.

I'd like to hypnotize you to be unhypnotizable and stand beside your wall.

And if you want to make it hard on me just be everything to everyone.

I know you're wondering who you are darling.

I know we can be whatever we want.

I see you fumbling your keys darling.

Let me take the power out of those things.

You're safe with me.

So I find myself asking you questions like "What's the life expectancy of a spy?"

You can find your savoir in the Oregon marching band, or when buying land.

What if we shut it off?

And if you want to make it hard on me just be everything to everyone .

I know you're following your heart darling.

I know we can do whatever we want.

I see you twitching in your seat darling.

Let me put the power back in your dreams.

You're safe with me.
