Andrzej Piaseczny, Forever golden

I don't want any photographs, oh no, When I'm on my way again 'Cause you can take this aching out from both our souls And what I know is there's a change So many sudden storms have passed by here And twice as many bitter words And when the wheel of time turns to what you really fear Keep believing he's coming back to you Till we're forever golden Till we're forever shining bright Falling into Beauty's shoulders Till Sadness turns out the light I don't want any photographs, oh no They only turn us into stone Cause I can feel you always watching over me Makes me feel I'm not all alone
