

Anita Lipnicka, You Change Me

You change me
I fall in love with myself by your side
I want to be your fingers, your eyes
I want to bring the light out
In everything around

You change me
I didn't know I really was a bird
My song was just too quiet to be hard
You come, you open me open
And it burst into the air

And if we are here for a while
Then who needs forever?
If I'm just a cloud in your sky
Let the wind blow
And change me

You change me
With foreign waters you reshape my soul
You put me on the waves and I'm afloat
I rise above the fear
And I am not afraid to fall

And if we are here for a while
Then who needs forever?
If I'm just a cloud in your sky
Let the wind blow and change me
