

Annett Louisan, more than you should know oh my the mess I got myself in I die to confess but where to begin well then for starters when we say goodbye the smile I'll be wearing is a miserable lie cause I am quietly go insane each time that you go please excuse the cool that I feign I just want you more than you should know it's hard to think up bright things to say when someone's taking your breath away the best I can do as I'm gasping for air is act like a fool who just doesn't care but I am quietly go insane

each time that you go
please excuse the cool that I feign
I just want you more than you should know

oh please forgive these weary lines I guess I must have been drunk at the time I tried to write down this song for you nonetheless darling most of it's true

cause I am quietly go insane
each time that you go
please excuse the cool that I feign
I just want you more than you should know