Annie Lennox, Coloured Bedspread

Bright lights are going dim I want to hide again The nights are caving in On my coloured bedspread I wanna drift so far To slip out of the crowd It doesn't matter how On my coloured bedspread Oooooh You make the stars dissolve Like sugar melting in my mouth Some people come and go But they won't ever know About the things we do On my coloured bedspread I remember places I've been to

Remember things I never knew Remember dreams that all came true On my coloured bedspread Oooooh We make the stars collide I touch the planets through your eyes Can you feel it Tell me can you feel it now Can you feel it Tell me can you feel it now Can you feel it Tell me can you feel it now You make the stars dissolve Like sugar melting in my mouth Oooooh. Beneath my coloured bedspread
