Well if you live in dusty twilight baby, that's ok
Cause there are woman at the bar to greet you every day
You can take them back to lie with you and visit Jamie's room
But they can never take the pain away
Or brighten all the gloom
And if your hands are cleansed with sorrow
May it help you ease your pain
Though the windows have a view of city rain, city rain
Well if you walk in constant sorrow
And you cry for me
And if your hit with painful memories
Maybe then you'll see
That if you drown yourself in liquor
Because it keeps you company
Then just remember who you're losing
And be proud to set me free
Because it don't talk back or disagree
It just makes you see so hazily
But in de morning light your life is scattered with the wind, scattered with the wind
And they tell you on the telephone to let him go
I said they tell you hes a sinking ship
And hes try to pull you down
Dont you know
That every time you call me up and sy you want me back
You know you break my heart
You sad you want me to come back home and trie again
You want me to make a brand new start
But if whisdom says to let him go
Than its hell because you just dont know
Untill youf tried to love a man whos lovin' whiskey
Lovin' whiskey
My baby left me for a bottle
And the lure of the nightlife
Good times and crazy women
And another glass of tangerine
But if whisdom says to let him go
Then it's hell because you just dont know
Untill you'f tried to love a man whos lovin' whiskey
Lovin' whiskey
