

Antigama, Asylum

You used to be better
Anything could amuse you
There was importance in every moment
You left too much things
And have no strength to see yourself you used to be
But now you just keep quiet
I see you get away
But I want you to know
That every road leads to the same place