

Aphasia, Then Again

but then again...

I could never take my time for granted and waste it like you do I think that's something that you always knew and in the end I just want to know how you could do this to me you owe me a reason for why you are so cold you didn't have to walk away it didn't have to end this way 'cause you had it all and you just gave it away a vivid memory burned in my mind I tried to put out the fire you broke the bond and now our time has expired and I was unaware you did not care my trust is broken and beyond repair

you didn't have to walk away
but then again...
our differences we could never mend I'm losing you and refusing to hide my pain I knew you were too good to be true do you feel the same as I do now, for you