

As I Lay Dying, I Never Wanted

i never wanted and i never cared before now take it back
this is a new day

how i long to regress to the days before i took upon myself the obsession of this world a day of innocence equating beauty for tomorrow may fall
and today is already gone

now take it back
this is a new day

ive grown tired of chasing convinced i was in need and now the years ive spent only a slave to this tomorrow may fall
and today is already gone
i will no longer adore these things that will never satisfy me i have seen my world change and then go back to where it came in this vicious circle we are all brought back to life only to die again but without these barren obsessions i am simply free