

Ashton Allen, The World's Fair

Last night I found a card you wrote your dad
21 years ago in 82
You told him how you felt
But who'd have know that three weeks later
He'd be gone and you'd be sad
But then again, it goes to show
You never know, so don't you miss the chance to tell somebody so
I love you always, I should've looked you in the eye, should've told you long ago
I love you always, I know it takes you by surprise, but I've gotta let you know.
I'll always be you're one and only son
And I'm so glad to be alive
Every time I see you smile
You're my dad
And I'm forever proud of all that you have done
You've come so far, you worked so hard
And that's the reason that I'm glad
I'm even half the man you are
I love you always, I should've looked you in the eye, should've told you long ago
I love you always, I know it takes you by surprise, but I've gotta let you know