

Atmosphere, A Tall Seven & Seven

Yo can I get a seven and seven over here Yo can I get a cranberry citron, a tall one No, no let me get a new castle, a new castle yo homie had I known you would of grown, into to a full blown example of how to act like an asshole I never would have introduced you to booze and skipping school cause right now I feel responsible to find an antidote back in junior high when you and I started getting high life was just a joke, we was to young to know the punch line and you were sooner die, then realize your running out of time who is to decide there is no more recess after lunchtime bam here you am, intoxicated again, yo how you doing man, yeah its good to see you Bam here you am, intoxicated again, you used to be my man, understand I believe you slightly exceeded, how many of them drink that you think you need when you are trying to boost the bonus points and reinforce your voice but im not trying to walk within your obnoxiousness we used to be friends back in the day when you had direction but that was before your brain felt that infection I aint claiming innocence, I was right there with you then but im just saying, when we was waiting to move up some of us grew up we all knew what the difference between what wrong and right was sometimes the line blurred when we was influenced by a light buzz but from what I see you've established the persona, basis built the foundation for emulating a genre, drama without taking the moment to ponder the trail of karma that you weaved through the field that you wandered no longer am I shocked, by the things you do I'm just confused as to why it has to be me to confront you

I guess nobody else gives a damn so I got to go up myself, cause I am a man, understand you can take it as concern, or you can see it as your ego getting burned either way tonight though, one us is going to learn and I guess nobody else gives a damn, but see I do, because you used to be my man, understand even if you beat me down to the cement, its all love I need to see you stick around until the end

Bam intoxicated again right (got to go up myself) Bam cause I am a man understand