

Attica Blues, Just An Avenue

There were times I could not see past all the decoys laid,
Placed in front of me
Just the frequency that was bothering me,
When all the time should have realized

Just your avenue for another escape
Just your avenue for another escape

I always felt that things would change (change for the best)
And for once I'd see some sort of progression
You always say you're down,
But when push comes to shove you always have excuses

Just your avenue for another escape
Just your avenue for another escape

You really need to think again
You know you have to make amends
Don't look me in the eye,
Assume it's alright
I won't be here for long

Only one reason for you not to change

Just your avenue for another escape
Just your avenue for another escape

And when you've had enough, don't bother even turning back to look at me
And when you've had enough, don't bother even turning back to look at me
And when you've had enough, don't bother even turning back to look at me

Just your avenue for another escape
Just your avenue for another escape