

Automatic Loveletter, Can't Move On

You build a heart that's strong
Walls to last long - it's paper mache
You think the battle's won
No use for shields and guns
You'll need them now
That the lump takes a home in your throat
With the words that you're choking
As you try to tell yourself it's okay
Flying by time to gaze but never face
You're stuck in the moment
When you thought you were rolling,
But you can't move on
You feel like your able
To love past the moment
But you can't move on
Asking why, asking why
Why I can't move on
You can't go, please stay
No. don't stay, go
I'm left, I'm right
I'm black I'm white
You ride a carousel 'round and 'round
Till the sickness grows inside
That lump takes a strangling hold
Squeezes tight till your cold and tears run dry
And where you once were worm now is
Tattered and torn crumbles and fades
You're stuck in the moment
When you thought you were rolling,
But you can't move on
You feel like your able
To love past the moment
But you can't move on
Asking why, asking why
Why I can't move on
Incomplete and stereotypical reaction
I can't get over, over, over you
This is how the story goes, glory in the moment
Won't let you go, won't let, you can't move on Cant move on, can't move on, oh, I can't move on
You're stuck in the moment
When you thought you were rolling,
But you can't move on
You feel like your able
To love past the moment
But you can't move on
Asking why, asking why
