Automatic Loveletter, Unhearted

Photograph each day so we can live forever
Sit in the light to make the dark a little darker
And I dance to move only you
And I fight to kiss and make up
I scream for some silence
I laugh to laugh for once
Not there so you notice I'm gone
And I breathe cause it's necessary
And I sigh when I see the moon
I dream to make sleepless boring
Until there was you
And I feel in the absence of heart
And I plug my eyes to cry
I'm a hopeless romantic and kicking the habit
But all hearts have darts
Sweet, red cherry blossom tree
That lives in both you and me
You marked your name
But I can see it's not on me
So I've shamelessly gone
And made myself come undone
Heavy hangs my head when I'm unhearted
I wear this angel's crown
To cover up my devil's frown
And upon my broken chest
Lay a struggle between loneliness
And things that are out of place
Like my head in outer space
And the carpet you walked on
The ceiling that cries, "Please don't walk away."
Sweet, red cherry blossom tree
That lives in both you and me
You marked your name
But I can see it's not on me
So I've shamelessly gone
And made myself come undone
Heavy hangs my head when I'm unhearted
Bellow it out with all the breath in my lungs
Apologize for all that I've done
You did a number on me and a fantastic job
In the scheme of all things we never felt When your heart's been breached
And your guard's been let down
You've rotten and spoiled me into the ground
And a good mess forgives all the rest we allow
Sweet, red cherry blossom tree
That lives in both you and me
You marked your name
But I can see it's not on me
So I've shamelessly gone
And made myself come undone
Heavy hangs my head when I'm unhearted (x2)
Sweet, red cherry blossom tree
That lives in both you and me