

Ayla Nereo, Lulu

Lulu lived her life like a child, wrapped up in arms that she kept all around her.
then one day she passed by a man who smiled as she held out her hand to him.
and he said, that's very nice but no thank you, I'm doing fine all alone here, doing fine on my own h
And she looked into his eyes for that lonely part but no, he wasn't lonely, just alone, and as she tur Lulu she packed up her bag, opened the door, and tipped her hat to him.
then she said, ah my dear, I'm so scared, I can't bear to sail this ship on my own.
I need some sign long the way,
I need someone to hold my hand to point me where I should be goin'.

And as he turned and walked away, she was looking at his face, she was waiting for him to stay, to
And he looked into her eyes, he said, goodbye, now you're alone, but don't feel lonely on your own
A hundred days cross the sea she was gone.
she walked by herself to search for her home.
she walked by herself till one day a boy caught up to her side, he held out his hand but she shook h and she said, that's very nice, but no thank you, I'm doing fine all alone here, doing fine on my own
And he looked into her eyes for that lonely part, but no, she wasn't lonely, just alone, and as he tur