

Backseat Goodbye, July

july you've never seen the sunlight so i'll tell you what we're gonna do grab my hand, hold it as tight as you can and don't let go so we drove, we drove all night you kept your eyes closed the whole time and when we got there you were so suprised "i have seen this before" you said then you realized what i meant it was beautiful it was the kind of thing that makes six hour drives worth while july you've never seen the stars fall so tonight we're gonna sleep out on the lawn the fireflies might kiss your cheek, but don't you worry, they're not mean and the moon will be here all night to sing us both to sleep july you've never understood life so you read books and stay inside well tomorrow i'm taking all your windows away so you can feel the wind through your hair so you'll touch the sky again and i try my best to see beauty in death love and living i found it in these songs it helps my heart go on i'm gonna call this home
'cause it just feels right and i know i belong won't you be my sunlight
