Backyard Babies, Painkiller

I see your phone's been cut off again Did you shoot all your troubles up the vein? Someone saw you, said, you were deadly pale Another night in hell, another night in jail Looks like the Chinaman's reelin' you in Looks like the horse is gonna win Looks like the monkeys are holding on tight Say hello to darkness, goodbye light, painkiller And as obscurity beckons the call, it seems oblivion Is the only thing to cushion your fall I believe that everything is gonna be too late It all sinks along with the ship you chose to hate Looks like the Chinaman's reelin' you in Looks like the horse is gonna win Looks like the monkeys are holding on tight Say hello to darkness, goodbye light, painkiller Now you sold all your possessions And not only your own There's miles to go yet But you're at the end of your road So you finally surrender To the endless sleep Found dead next mornin' With your life at your feet Looks like the Chinaman's reelin' you in Looks like the horse is gonna win Looks like the monkeys Are holding on tight, say hello to darkness Looks like the Chinaman's reelin' you in Looks like the horse is gonna win Looks like the monkeys are holding on tight Say hello to darkness, goodbye light, painkiller Sail into the darkness goodbye light Say hello to darkness, goodbye light Say hello, goodbye