

Bad Religion, The State Of The End Of The Millenium

Bad Religion

Miscellaneous

The State Of The End Of The Millenium Address

Bad Religion

The State Of The End Of The Millenium Address

for the 21st century.

Never before has a governing body shown so much concern for the economic well-being of its subjects.

Today we have insulated you from countless factions who threatens your financial viability; such as the poor; the idealistic foreigners still clinging to their childish notions of social welfare; why, you're even kept uninformed of useless propagandist journalism that reports alleged violations of human rights (We all know they wouldn't have been punished if they hadn't been doing something wrong!!). And who better to dispense such blatantly evident factoids but a self-appointed authority like myself?

Acid Rain is a thing of the past... Too many possible causes, too little significance for our modern thinking public, besides industrial manufacturing is at an all time low anyway, who needs those narrow minded laborers anyway. Too many mouths to feed, and too many burden on the pay roll! Who needs 'em? Here in the land of the free-time. Someother ass back-ward country will give us what we need by exploiting its uneducated children.

The Internet has expanded our ability to pacify average americans better than ever by offering fantastical adventures to every corner of the imagination. Your home office is the window to your world, and the heart of your social life. Such reclusive behaviour helps clear the roads and public works from overburden like the lower middle-class and others who depend shamelessly on their government. Today you are freer than ever to do what you want, provided you can pay for it!

Remeber, the first word in USA is US

We have arrived neighbours, we are the priviliged elite!