

Balzac, Swallow The Dark

A long time has passed
Everything has now changed
Still some scenes somewhat remain and never fade
A long time has passed
Those who pass now seem unknown
So lets focus on what remains the same
I feel there are things that never change
I am again standing here today
But don't be afraid
There's nothing you need to know
Facing a closed door
When I look up to the sky
Torn off in a spiral of light
Illusions stream through the clouds
Facing a closed door
When I look down at the world
The fear that is before to be filled with sadness
I feel there are things that never change
I am again standing here today
The enduring day comes to a close
I won't be touched and darkness swallows my lasting
Everything before me just rusts away
Crazed the memory I won't show from within th darkness
Everything before me just rusts away
