Banks Tony, Red Day On Blue Street

Banks Tony
Still
Red Day On Blue Street
They're kissing babies and telling me lies
They're taking over my television
They're making noises that sound so wise
Trying to influence my decision
Rituals old fashioned
With speeches so proud and passionate
Hope reigns, fears rule
I may be crazy but I'm not such a fool
No such fool

Red day on blue street And this world promises everything Old shoes on new feet again Nothing changes Red day on blue street

Here comes a man with a face so sincere Here comes another with power on his mind Both with a want for a word in my ear Both with a message of hope for my kind Heads of this nation Fight lies with misinformation and This gives, that takes One or the other for the difference it makes None at all

Red day on blue street
And this world promises everything
Old shoes on new feet again
Nothing changes
Red day on blue street

We are the chosen ones
You have asked us to serve you
We deserve you
It's going the way that we said it would
We say that you never had it so good
No one's a loser who plays our game
The difference is clear, we just changed our name
Nobody knows that it's just the same
Red day on blue street
Or how about
Blue day on red street
It doesn't matter, it really doesn't

Somebody showing me the magical way Somebody waving the key to my chains They must believe I was born yesterday They must believe I've got sand for my brains Members historical Woo me with words rhetorical Blood runs, mud flies Can't see a thing for the wool in my eyes In my eyes

Red day on blue street
And this world promises everything
Old shoes on new feet again
Nothing changes
Red day on blue street
