

Banks Tony, The Final Curtain

Banks Tony

Still

The Final Curtain

It's been fun but the time has come

To bring down the final curtain move along

Time to face what you know in your heart

That the world keeps on turning you've lost your part

It's never ending

Take a look if you're not sure at the millions gone before

It's been hard when the going is rough

Or you're many thousand miles away from home

To believe that it's all worthwhile

That it makes the slightest difference in the end

And it gets harder

Will you stay until you're pushed

Or will the day dawn when you're on your own

You look around

There's only empty rows of chairs

Where once your fairweather friends

Hung on every word that you said

It's been fun but the moment is near

To write down the final chapter turn the page

To be free from the power and the lure

That has pushed from behind and led you on

It's never ending

Take a look if you're not sure at the millions gone before
