

Barenaked Ladies, Powder Blue

With each mistake,
You either bend or break
With every word I choose
You only seem to bruise
Powder blue always suited you,
Or was your suitor too
Until you're powder blue
You're going off the deep end
I'm going over all the things I've gotta say
Apologies from my front door
I couldn't love you more
The bell was cracked
Your senses sacked
What once seemed civilized, In fear was paralyzed
I made love blind, I lost my mind
And now I'm over you
As I'm not under you
We thought we'd drive forever
Now is it okay if I walk you to your car?
Apologies, from your car floor
I couldn't love you more
I couldn't love you more
I couldn't love you more
Baby between you and me, love is all we need
You held out your heart
So I could watch it bleed
I never thought you could ever fall
Into my life, so banal
But something so light shouldn't hurt ... at all
Apologies, from my front door
I couldn't love you more
I couldn't love you more
I couldn't love you more
Couldn't love you anymore
