Bayside, I can't go on

I cant go on Deflate the air from both of my lungs Fears one by one Followed me home And became reality I'm a failure I'm a freak I'm a chip on your shoulder The last thing you need Shudder, earth quakes at the thought Of a life thats meaningless And with such a promising past But you can always count on me To choke the end

I cant go on Deflate the air From both Of my lungs III be gone Long before daylight shows its face

Honestly I'm Taking big strides In a race towards normalcy Where more is more And less is weak Where love is crap, emotion speaks For us all Whats really right Whos who to say I can survive alone again Figured that out the hardest way The forecast calls for fire Flames sound nice today

I cant go on Deflate the air from both Of my lungs III be gone Long before daylight shows its face It's old and worn And it's mouth smiles no more Well I'm worth my weight in potting soil Maybe I try to hard to care

I left a note on your bed I dont recall what it said It's something like I'm completely miserable And I'm better off dead

I cant go on Deflate the air from both Of my lungs Ill be gone Long before daylight shows its face It's old and worn And it's mouth smiles no more Well I'm worth my weight in potting soil Maybe I try to hard to care

I cant go on

Deflate the air from both Of my lungs

l cant go on Deflate the air from both Of my lungs
