

Beccy Cole, Too Strong To Break

I've never been the kind to heed to strong advice
Never willing to concede or fall apart
I've learned to speak my mind no matter what the price
But love has left this heart

CHORUS: A little bit banged and a little bit bruised
A little bit cheated and a little bit used
A little mistreated and a little confused....on love
A little too soon for the hurt to mend
A little too late to try again
A little too weak to bare this end
A little too Strong to Break

In the shadows of my mind in the darkness of my soul
Regret has come to play its sorry part
What I retrieve in time to get the passion store
But love has left this heart

A little bit banged and a little bit bruised
A little bit cheated and a little bit used
A little mistreated and a little confused...on love
A little too soon for the hurt to mend
A little too late to try again
A little too weak to bare this end
A little too Strong to Break

Repeat Chorus (2)