

Before God, Condemned To Walk Alone

Callously whispered the worlds of contempt
Into your minds, with malicious intent
Dream while you slumber of a world they created
Then sleep walk through life, in a oblivious state

When will you finally see
Their world not truly free
I am flesh and bone
Condemned to walk alone

Obey the captors that strangle your mind
How will you see, when their veil keeps you blind
Euphoric lies are taken to breath
Yet, what is life, when your dying a slow death

When will you finally see
Their world not truly free
I am flesh and bone

Condemned to walk alone

Beneath the blue skies, you'll bask so naive
Not wary of the paling tranquility
The calm is now, but near is the storm
Soon the war will come to form

When you hear the wind whisper all around
Beware the voice that beckons you bound
Though unseen it is as it passes by
You'll sway like the trees' neath the dead skies

For the glimmer gold don't sell your soul
Or abandon your mind to their control
Assimilation their fallacy
Take hold of the chance to truly live free

This land of prosperity wears a facade
Meant to pacify you with greed as your god
You'll work for their enemies like total slaves
Bred from the candles to toil to your graves

Condemned to walk alone
Condemned to walk alone
Condemned to walk alone
Condemned to walk alone
Condemned to walk alone
Condemned to walk alone
Condemned to walk alone

When will you finally see
Their world's not truly free
I am flesh and bone
Condemned to walk alone