

Bel Canto, Tierre Obeletz - Jacob's Lullaby

Even the strong get humble at heart,
Even so the wisdom we greet has sprung from the feeblest seed
Dream of this spark in you
I'd want you to Crush any doubt with a one last embrace

If your world should crumble to sand,
And the storms sweeps it out of your hands
We brave, don't fall apart

Ooh, it's here again
Is this the moment, when...

Sleep while the snow turns silvery blue
Take a little sip from the moonlit water that twinkles in you
Nothing in the world can harm
Such radiant charm
Navigate by means of the signs in the stars

They will follow you back to the sea

They will follow you back to me
When I am dead and gone

Ooh, it's here again
This is the moment, when...
Still there are words I have never said,
Still there is so much unsaid

Even the strong get humble at heart
Even so the firmest belief has sprung from the feeblest seed
Realize this spark in you, I'd want you to
Navigate by means of the signs in the stars

They will follow you back to the sea,
They will follow you back to me
To our heart

These are the things I could never tell,
Somehow he knew them too well