Ben Folds, Your Most Valuable Possession

(6:49 a.m, Friday, November 20th) "Good morning, Mr. Ben. It's about 6:30 Winston-Salem, North Carolina.

Um...just laying here in the bed, half awake, half asleep, thinking about you.

I was wondering if you were looking after your most valuable possession: your mind.

I was thinking about John Glenn, his space journey and all.

They said that when you're in space you lose muscle mass and the body mass and I wondered if there was any end to it.

Or whether, if you didn't exercise in space, how long it would be before you were just a head, or a mind and have no body or arms. You'd have them but you couldn't use them.

I was wondering if if your body mass would drop to a certain level, and then it would stop right there. And keep whatever you needed to use your mind because it would still be working."

(30 seconds remaining)

"Anyway, I was just pondering that. What do you think about...that?

I hope everything is going alright. I may well wake up here in a little while and forget what I was thinking about."
