

Ben Jelen, She'll Hear You

The years flash by, today melts to yesterdays memories,
Time's holding us tight
I'm looking back to remember the days we said we'd never say goodbye.

And now you're gone, my hands melt to yesterday's melodies
Time's pushing along,
Still looking back to hold on to the days we said we'd never say goodbye.

Sometimes I feel like we've been running too far from the truth
You know I'm tired of hearing 'another day another time'
All this senseless waiting won't fill these dark empty rooms,
Why won't you come home?

I wish, I feel, I can't believe I've seen these nights
Pass by, those hands, what happened to those eyes, my Eyes seduced by that smile that crumbles away, washes
Away those tears, let tears roll by, she'll hear you
Cry, yeah she'll hear you.

Sometimes I feel...
You know I hate to say it, but since you've gone I know that

Even though I'm feeling low, I guess I'm feeling free.
We can live our own existence 'cause I know these
Dreams will bring you back to me.

I'm dreaming a world with you, I wish the night was longer
I'm chasing the way we were, I wish that I could catch us.
I'm feeling your hand in mine, I wish I'd held it closer
I know that I will soon find, I know that she can hear me say

She'll hear you, these dreams will bring you back to me.