

Ben Lee, Ache For You

In the rain
I'm walking slowly
there's a light
in your apartment
and I don't know why
I ache for you and it's alright if you're undecided or, if you're scared that you might like it or if it's true, I ache for you

there's no rhyme and there's no reason you're the secret in the back of my skull there's no logic, so please believe me our love's confusing, but it never gets dull it's getting late anticipation

and if we talk communication and then you'll know
I ache for you and yes sometimes it's just desire another problem there you really don't want but anyway, I ache for you.

there's no rhyme and there's no reason I know the secret in the back of my skull
there's no logic, so please believe me our love's confusing, but it never, it never gets dull

I ache for you.

I ache for you.

and I'm tired, of so much wanting and what if, don't even think it but why not.

there's no rhyme and there's no reason
put a secret in the back of my skull (back of my skull)
there's no logic, so please believe me our love's confusing, but it never gets dull (it never gets dull)

there's no rhyme and there's no reason you're the secret in the back of my skull (back of my skull)
there's no logic, so please believe me our love's confusing, but it never gets dull (never gets dull) but it never gets dull (never gets dull) never gets dull
I ache for you

I ache for you

I ache for you
I ache for you
I ache for you