

Berman, All Comes Down

you try so hard to build this up but it always brings you down you try so hard to live it up but it always comes around what if tomorrow it all comes down and everyone falls to the ground and when the sun sets you look around and everyone's lost their crown you've walked this hill so many times now you walk this path alone you lost the thrill so many times but your life is set in stone you're made to run

but they slow you to a crawl
you're made to run
but they live to make you fall
you're made to run
but they got to have it all
you're made to run
but they never make you fall