

Bernard Butler, You Light The Fire

You light the fire and I'll bring home a smile
And we'll probably be ok
Yesterday was fine but tomorrow you'll be mine
And every day will stay the same

How long until you discover that the man you broke wont decay
How long until you recover all the memories you thru away

Take the car and drive as far as possible tonight
And promise me we'll stay away
You'll be wanting more than the love you never saw
And the motherhood you cast aside in haste

How long until you discover all the lies you broke on your way
How long until you recover and the man you broke walks away

You light the fire and I'll bring home a smile
And we'll probably be ok