Big Country, Steeltown

Alone among the hills and stone Through summer sun and winter snow The eagle he was lord above And Rob was lord below 240 years We lived without hope and without pride So who will know where they come from Who raised a torch for those who died I will be with them In the summer sun And the winter snow They will come and clouds will go And show that we are proud again Though all we lost in autumn days Cannot be born again Stand here by me Until the ways of age and youth Are one and same
