

Bill Anderson, Long and Warm Ago

Lost in long and warm ago

I just caressed a mem'ry and took it from my mind it fell around me like a gentle glow

A smile of sadness curved my lips my thoughts rushed back in time

To when you loved me long and warm ago

The breeze that cooled our faces is now an icy wind

It chills me to the bone and makes me know

That nothing is forever and everything must end

And be just a part of long and warm ago

We tasted of the rain we trusted in the sun

We talked of holding hands when we grew old

But you left and now tomorrow like yesterday is gone lost in long and warm ago
