

Billy Gilman, About Watches

I like wearing
Lots and lots of watches
For two reasons
First
If they are all set
A little different
If they are all set
A little different
No one's ever
Too late, or
Too early, or
Right on time
They just "are";
Watches, watches

No one's every too late, or too early, or right on time they just "are";
No one's every too late, or too early, or right on time they just "are";
They just are, they just are

I like wearing watches
Lots and lots of watches
For two reasons
The second reason,

With all these
Watches on me
It's like having
"All the time
In the world";
And never having
To think about
The end of time
Or about dying

No one's every too late, or too early, or right on time they just "are";
No one's every too late, or too early, or right on time they just "are";
They just are, they just are

With all these
Watches on me
It's like having
"All the time
In the world";
And never having
To think about
The end of time
Or about dying

No one's every too late, or too early, or right on time they just "are";
No one's every too late, or too early, or right on time they just "are";
They just are, they just are

No one's every too late, or too early, or right on time they just "are";
No one's every too late, or too early, or right on time they just "are";
They just are, they just are

I like wearing watches