

Billy Klippert, Scars

What is and what should be that sings like a scene from a movie
But it's all going down waiting on a new day
'Cause a promise may be coming around

I'm counting the hours 'till I see you again
And no one's going to know where we've been

I'm falling from grace right into your arms
How did you know when to be there
With all our mistakes we've buried the scars
But we know where they are

What is and what should be you said you were going
To save me and where are you now
So why would I make you stay I wouldn't want it that way
But it's all going down

For every beginning that comes to an end
Another one is starting again, and...

Never asked me for a reason though I know you wondered why
You kept on believing believing you and I
Were meant to be together and maybe you were right

How did you know, how did you know, when to be there