

Black Label Society, Shallow Grave

The fall within this hole
My eyes are blind, yet I see
Lifeless and dark
No need to feel or be
Mourned the passing of myself
I saw today
All that I once held
I watch it fall away
Nothing left to say
The broken pieces that fill
This shallow grave
Buried and left alone
I find myself
Empty and withdrawn
Mourned the passing of myself
I saw today
All that I once held
I watch it fall away
The broken pieces that fill
This shallow grave
The walls cave as the end begins
As it all comes crashing down
I hear a voice I know too well
It comes to me and pulls me down
It pulls me down
All that I once held
I watch it fall away
The broken pieces that fill
This shallow grave
I mourned the passing of myself
I saw today
The broken pieces that fill
This shallow grave
