

Blackbud, Sitting By The River

Sitting by the river and I see the light,
There's something cold in the air tonight,
The rippling reflections pass me by,
And my friends and my enemies I can't define,

Sounds like...

Well, sitting down in company,
There's too many grey faces facing me,
And I can't think to see or think,
Look out my window of reality,

And I said maybe someday I'll know,
What everyone seems to know,
Maybe someday I'll know,
What everyone seems to know,

Sitting by the river and I see the light,
Something cold in the air tonight,
And the rippling reflections pass me by,
Friends and my enemies don't reply,

Maybe someday I'll know,
What everyone seems to know,
Maybe maybe someday I'll know,
What everyone seems to know,

Do you remember,
Over and over,
This is how you,
Hide over,

I tried so hard to find you,
Tell that I loved you,
But baby I forgot I'd forgotten that tool,
Belongs to your ambitions,
But my own inhibitions baby,

Maybe someday I'll know,
What everyone seems to know,
Maybe someday I'll know,
How everyone seems to know
