Blake Babies, I'm Not Your Mother

People think you're tough, but you only pretend to be. A real man would live alone and feel no pain, like me.

When your baby said she was leaving you slapped yourself in the face. You clung to her and cried and cracked all over the place.

Because you're a weakling. You're a suckling lamb. You're not so tough. You're just a man.

I was only talking when I said to you whatever it was I said. I didn't mean anything. Just put it out of your head.

Now you look to me like I'm ready to give but I only just wanted to play. You're trying to cop a feeling while I'm trying to get away.

You're a big guy, but you're cut down to size when you're left all by yourself. Well I'm not paid to babysit and don't ask me to help.

Let go of me and fall into the arms of another I'm the wrong girl for you. I'm not your mother.

I'm an island. I'm a rock. My head's an emtpy mental block. You can't get lovin' from a stone. I ain't no goddam foster home.

You're a weakling. You're a suckling lamb. You're not so tough. You're just a man.

You're a weak thing. Just a little lamb. You're not so tough. You're just like a woman.

Anything you can do I can do better Girls will do it all without the aid of a mother. Anything you can do I can do better Girls will do it all without the aid of a mother. Anythign you can do I can do do. I'm not your mother. I'm not your mother.
