

Blind Melon, Soak A Sin

I've got to buy some shoes these ones are getting loose my feet are shrinking in the sun, and it ain't fun but it looks like rain up ahead in forty miles a big rainbow took the blue sky i'm gonna tell my mamma i love her so,
and thank you for giving me these bones o gold i'm gonna run from my home jump in the river, and let the water soak the sin in my soul fine time we all crossed lines make the music that makes us feel fine rednecks on sundecks hearing a hillside romeo say `boys this is the good shit so come on yall and eat a little bit` and if i ever go back home i'm gonna set
i'm gonna tell my mamma i love her so,
jump in the river, and let the water soak the sin in my soul Don't even say a word, it confuses me What he says to do, is that we don't have to We don't have to
