Blood, Woundead

move on, hold and drag invade no ones land take a look in their starved eyes mean more than a leading hand now scrape and borrow in grimness the groaning, fever and praying the convulsion and screams of dying reach for you you are the borderguard between life and death the game you play is the game against god