Blue Rodeo, Girl In Green

It doesn't matter what you say no it don't matter how many times you turn away and I don't care what all your so-called friends say you'll never ever change the way that I feel we will be anything we could be everything you want we could be anything we will be everything you want what do I have to do to make you see the obvious 'cause if I deceive you I just deceive myself yeah I have faith but I feel so misunderstood are you what I think you are or just what I think I want we will be everything we will be everything you want we will be everything we will be anything you want am I your lover or a substitute you say time will reveal all the truth so I stopped loving you and I started wanting you you slip away into your pleasant solitude we will be everything we could be everything you want we will be everything we will be everything you want it's all for the girl in green