

Blue Rodeo, Somebody Waits

Now I think I know why
You sounded so strange on the telephone
Well It's hard when you discover
What keeps you going keeps you all alone

Dreams so real you thought the smoke might never clear
Now you hide it all behind endless cigarettes and tears

Somebody waits for the time I know it never comes
You get yourself so high
Then you come down feeling blue
One day you'll wake up and realize you've had enough
The thousand shining moments
Waiting just to happen to you, to you, to you

Wait until you're stronger
There's no sense starting when you're down so low
Well it takes the heart a little longer
To see the point in finally letting go

You lose your touch out there standing in the rain
When it's all too much you feel like slipping down again

Somebody waits for the time I know it never comes
You get yourself so high
Then you come down feeling blue
One day you'll wake up and realize you've had enough
There's a thousand shining moments
Waiting just to happen to you

Somebody waits for the time I know it never comes
You get yourself so high
Then you come down feeling blue
One day you'll wake up and realize you've had enough
There's a thousand shining moments
Waiting just to happen to you
